Hammerstrom encourages colleagues to wear red Senator works to raise awareness of women and heart disease

LANSING – In support of National “Go Red For Women” Day, members of the Michigan State Senate will join millions of Americans this week when they wear red to show their support for heart disease awareness, announced Sen. Beverly Hammerstrom, R-Temperance.

Go Red For Women is the American Heart Association’s national movement to raise awareness of heart disease among women. According to statistics, cardiovascular disease, which includes heart disease, kills approximately one woman every minute in the United States.

“Heart disease takes the lives of more sisters, mothers, aunts, grandmothers and wives than the next six leading causes of death, including all cancers,” said Hammerstrom, chair of the Senate Health Policy Committee. “Educating women about the dangers of heart disease and the benefits of taking charge of their health will help us reduce the number of deaths associated with this disease.”

Women face six major risk factors for heart disease that can be prevented, controlled or treated with diet, exercise and sometimes prescribed medications. The risk factors include high blood pressure, high blood cholesterol, tobacco smoke, physical inactivity, obesity or overweight and diabetes.

“Heart disease can most often be prevented by living a healthy lifestyle,” Hammerstrom said. “By discussing the risk factors with a doctor and maintaining a heart-healthy lifestyle, women can significantly lower their chance of developing heart disease.”

According to the Michigan Department of Community Health, nine out of 10 Michigan adults have one or more of the major risk factors. Cardiovascular disease, including heart disease, annually costs Michigan approximately $12.9 billion.

Funding for cardiovascular disease prevention programs comes from the Healthy Michigan Fund. Created in 1996, the fund uses tobacco-tax generated revenue to improve the health of Michigan residents while addressing the needs of vulnerable populations.

National Go Red For Women Day is Friday, Feb. 4. Senate members wore red today to show their support for the movement.

“My colleagues and I are wearing red today to show our commitment to keep Michigan healthy,” Hammerstrom said.
